Welcome to Theological Field Education at VST.

If you are a student or supervisor about to enter into Theological Field Education (TFE), I welcome you into a dynamic program of mutual learning.

There are many ways by which the Vancouver School of Theology prepares thoughtful, engaged and generous Christian leaders, in conversation with other faith traditions and the indigenous church, for service in the 21st Century. TFE is the opportunity in the Master of Divinity (MDiv) degree and the Master of Arts in Public and Pastoral Leadership (MA-PPL) degree for students to intentionally reflect on the practice of doing ministry.

In TFE, students work in collaboration with leaders and supervisors at ministry or community sites. Often, through engagement with others at those sites, learning is further enhanced. These vibrant relationships become a central resource for the students' learning and form the heart of our field education program. Yet there is more: students will interact with other faculty in the practical theology area of the school, they will engage in learning with peers, they will reflect in the quiet spaces and moments of life and all that they do in this time will become part of their learning.

A central feature of TFE at VST for several years has been The Studio – the creative yet messy environment where the arts of leadership are explored and engaged. Drawing on the 'case-in-point' method of experiential learning pioneered by Ronald Heifetz and colleagues in leadership education at the Harvard Kennedy School of Business, students in The Studio are prepared to develop stamina, resilience and a creative engagement with what Otto Sharmer calls "the future that is seeking to emerge." The Studio, which runs alongside TFE II, is a place where students integrate ministry and leadership theory and practice in an intentional way.

In the following pages you will find basic elements of field education at VST: descriptions of the programs, the responsibilities of students, and the important requests we make of sites and supervisors. We provide the same information to all participants, so that each of us understands our roles within the ecology of learning.

In every aspect of our program, we uphold the value that adult learners do best when they take responsibility for their own learning process. We involve students in making choices about their learning from the very start: choosing their sites, interviewing their possible mentors, planning their learning, integrating their learning, and evaluating their progress and the quality of the learning partnerships they have formed. Field education fosters dynamic learning which is initiated, developed, and evaluated by each person who is part of the learning context.

I look forward to welcoming you into the learning and partnership of Theological Field Education at VST.

The Rev. Dr. Steven J. Chambers
Interim Director – Theological Field Education

1. Theological Field Education at VST

1.1 Educational Philosophy

Field education placements in church and community at VST are designed to be mutual learning experiences in which students, mentors, and the School's faculty establish a teaching and learning network. Although our backgrounds in ministry and our levels of engagement in a student's placement may vary, each of us is engaged in the teaching and learning process.

If our learning, as adults, carries with it a sense of interdependence, or mutuality, the more satisfying our learning will be.

St. Paul's image of the body of Christ, one with many complementary parts, commends itself to Theological Field Education. We are mutually accountable to God and to one another. VST strives to develop an educational experience in which dialogue fosters a respectful learning environment. Posing questions, offering insights, giving encouragement and direction are the norm.

Theological Field Education programs are grounded in adult education and practice. Principles of adult education are employed in the following ways:

- Students are self-directed independent learners who take responsibility for their learning. They work with mentors, student peer groups, and instructors to develop Learning Goals and Covenants, which include clear strategies for achieving goals, objectives, action plans and evaluation tools.
- Public and Pastoral Leadership courses and Theological Field Education placements encourage students to discover and celebrate their spiritual gifts, identify their limitations and to discern their potential in ministry in the light of their faith, the Christian tradition (or other tradition), life circumstances, context and vocational journeys.
- The student's personal, cultural and denominational histories are respected in all pastoral theology courses and field placements.

1.2 Requirements

All students in the M.Div. program are required to complete three full units of supervised Theological Field Education (TFE 1, 2, 3). Students in the MA-PPL program are required to complete two full units of field education (TFE 1, 2). Though mandatory, these units are not counted in the credit hour requirement of the degree program, nor are students charged tuition for any unit of theological field education. Students should register for TFE when registering for their courses.

The actual hours spent in TFE units 1 and 2 include (a) the Sunday worship service (if appropriate to the placement), (b) sessions with the student's mentor, and (c) special projects, meetings or events in which the student is engaged as part of her or his learning covenant. Travel to and from the site is not considered part of the actual hours worked.

1.2.1 Police Information Check (PIC)

A Police Information Check (PIC), formerly called a Criminal Record Check, is required for all students in TFE. Students are responsible for attaining the PIC from their local police department and for the cost (See, for example :

<https://vancouver.ca/police/organization/records-checks-fingerprinting/index.html> or

<https://www2.gov.bc.ca/gov/content/justice/criminal-justice/policing-in-bc/publications-statistics-legislation/publications/police-information-checks-guidelines-for-police>). Students will be provided with an individualized letter at orientation to assist them in attaining a PIC. If the student has a current PIC (within the last six months), a copy of that document will be accepted. A copy of the PIC (current or within six months) is to be uploaded to Populi by the student before the beginning of any course with a field component, or any unit of TFE begins.

Placement sites and mentors for TFE II and TFE III usually last for an entire academic year (or comparable summer period in the case of TFE III) unless there are compelling reasons to change placements. Arrangements for TFE placements and mentors must be discussed with the Director of Field Education before final decisions are made regarding their appropriateness.

1.3 TFE Programs: Goals, Organization, Descriptions

There are three basic units of TFE.

Unit One: TFE 1 and PT502 – The Exploration

- Required for students in MDiv and MA-PPL.
- Normally introduced during PT 500 (Spiritual and Theological Foundations for Pastoral and Public Leadership) and PT501 (Personal Foundations for Pastoral and Public Leadership), which are taken in Fall Term. Concluding papers in PT 500 provide direction and lead into PT 502.
- In PT 502 (Leadership in Context), during Spring Term, students explore potential field sites where they might follow up their vocational interests expressed in the work of PT 500. They interview potential mentors, conduct site analysis, consider their learning styles and reflect on the ethical requirements of research with human subjects. They prepare a Project Proposal that will be suitable to the requirements of TFE 2/The Studio/PT651-652. The work in PT502 is assessed as APPROVED/NOT APPROVED. Successful presentation of the Project Proposal, which contains a description and analysis of the proposed learning sites, an introduction to the proposed mentor and the project proposal, completes TFE 1 and admits the student to TFE 2 The Studio, which runs alongside PT651 & PT652 in the following year. If the student is not planning to proceed in the following term to TFE 2, it is possible to delay the Proposal Presentation upon discussion and approval of the TFE Director.

Unit Two: TFE 2 – The Studio

- Required for students in MDiv and MA-PPL.
- The Studio is VST's core experience in Theological Field Education and action-reflection learning on leadership.
- Students in The Studio form a crucible where the skills and practices of strategic leadership can be taught, tested and refined within an intentional and creative collaborative environment. The term "Studio" evokes the individuality and creativity of artistic practice within a communal enterprise. The Studio aims to engage the leader as a whole person in interaction with traditional and developing leadership practices.
- TFE 2 - The Studio is comprised of two terms of supervised field-based learning (as developed in the student's work in PT502), consisting of 10-12 hours per week for 10-12 weeks of each term. At the same time, students are in PT651 & PT652, The Studio, where they engage the creative, sometimes messy, adaptive character of leadership required for the future that is emerging.
- Students should plan their academic coursework cognizant of required time commitments of TFE 2 field education and The Studio.

Unit Three: TFE 3 – The Practice

- Required for MDiv students.
- TFE 3 is an immersion in either a congregation of the student's denomination, or a social agency that is specifically emerging as an interest for the student. Students participate in these sites in ways which are appropriate to their Learning Goals, the site context, and the requirements of their denomination (See Appendix V "Denominational Learning Outcomes"). Interaction with a supervisor provides support and feedback on the student's hands-on experience. Theological Reflection – exploring, discerning and articulating the presence and activity of God in the field experience - together with the supervisor is a key element of TFE 3.
- TFE 3 normally takes place over two terms and is comprised of approximately 100 hours of onsite supervised learning in each term.
- TFE 3 is normally done toward the end of the degree (in the Fall and Spring terms of final year). However, if the student would benefit from more practical experience before entering TFE 2 - The Studio, the TFE Director will consider a change to the order.
- Overseas placements in TFE will be considered by the TFE Director.
- Summer placements or a Unit of Clinical Pastoral Education (CPE) could be considered for TFE 3, with approval of the TFE Director.
- The requirements for a summer placement are similar to TFE 3 – The Practice with the following additions:
 - the student may be required to participate in a concluding integration seminar to be held during the first weeks of fall term.
 - the commitment is 16-20 hours weekly for ten to twelve weeks.

2. Assumptions and Definitions

2.1 Theological Reflection

A key component in Theological Field Education is the development of skill and the habit of doing theological reflection. This requires a commitment of time and use of varied methods in order to assist the student to integrate experience and theory. (See Appendix IV “Theological Reflection”)

2.2 Site

A site is a setting for ministry (congregation, parish, hospital, prison, service and/or social agency, etc.) that has been approved by the Director of Theological Field Education for a student placement. Field Education sites provide placements for students under the guidance of a mentor as they experience ministry firsthand and complete specific learning goals. Sites will be chosen that demonstrate a willingness for mutual learning and analysis. An approved Learning Covenant is required for each site annually. (See Appendix VI “Forms for Theological Field Education”) This covenant must be signed by a legal representative of the congregation’s governing board i.e. The Chair of Council, the Warden, an appointed Elder.

2.3 Mentor and Supervisor

A mentor/supervisor is a lay, commissioned, ordered or ordained person serving in ministry or a social agency who provides on-site guidance and support to field placement students. He/She/They is appointed by and accountable to the Director of Theological Field Education for this purpose. Mentors/supervisors offer their students support and feedback through a disciplined educational process in which they reflect on all aspects of the student’s ministry leadership at the field placement site. Mentors/supervisors also assist VST by contributing written evaluations by the due dates as set out in the Theological Field Education Calendar (pages 7-8). See Section Three for details about Mentors and Supervisors).

2.4 Learning Goals and Learning Covenant

Learning Goals:

- are developed by the student in consultation with the TFE Director and others as appropriate (Director of Formation, denominational representatives)
- are specific to the student and the student’s learning
- if required, need to connect to any practical theology course connected to the TFE unit.
- need to be manageable and appropriate to the scope of time and the context of the field placement site and context.

Learning Covenant:

- is a contractual agreement concerning terms of accountability between a student, mentor and the School, which includes the specific Learning Goals (above) that the student will strive to achieve during a field placement.

- is developed by a student in consultation with their mentor and the TFE Director.
- must be approved by the TFE Director as must any subsequent amendments to the Covenant.
- may be reviewed mid-year with the approval of the mentor/supervisor and TFE Director. A draft of any changes to the Covenant, stating the reasons for the revisions, must be submitted to the TFE Director when the mid-year evaluation report is submitted.
- serves to clarify expectations of both student and mentor, as well as the focus of the placement.
- includes the Site Covenant, which is the agreement between the student, school and the site and must be signed by a legal representative of the congregation's, organization's or agency's governing board (i.e. The Chair of Council, the Warden, an appointed Elder. Board Chair).

See Appendix II for an example of Learning Goals and Learning Covenant.

2.5 Conflict Resolution

If any part of the teaching, learning or evaluation process breaks down, the Director of Theological Field Education must be notified immediately. Upon notification, a consultative process will be initiated to resolve the differences or to terminate the field placement agreement.

3. Mentors and Supervisors

Vancouver School of Theology is indebted to ministry leaders in congregations and organizational leaders in social placements who volunteer their services as mentors/supervisors of students in their field placements.

3.1 Description of Role

A mentor or supervisor is a lay, ordered or ordained person serving in ministry (or an approved agency) who provides on-site guidance and support to placement students. In the normative context of change in the church and society, the supervisor/mentor is a seasoned leader willing to venture with the student into unknown territory presented by new challenges and opportunities. The Theological Field Education program at VST generally uses the term mentor in relation to TFE 2 - The Studio and supervisor for TFE 3 The Practice. While much of the role is the same, there is a slight difference: in The Studio the term mentor is used to focus on the character of the leader and the student's involvement in choosing their mentor. In TFE 3 practice, the emphasis is placed on the experience and skill of the supervisor in the tradecraft of their ministry leadership and in the church's identification of that person as a teacher.

Field placement mentors and supervisors have developed finely tuned skills in pastoral ministry, theological reflection, spiritual discernment and adaptive leadership over many years of study, spiritual discipline and experience. The teacher as learner is a key principle in successful Theological Field Education and so mentors / supervisors recognize that they, too, are learning as they guide their students.

The role of the mentor/supervisor is to assist students to reflect on their experiences of doing ministry. While the mentor/supervisor may express compassion, he or she also needs to be firm in the expectations of the covenant. TFE, with skilled oversight, can be an opportunity for the student to reflect on the realities of life they are going to encounter in ministry.

Mentors/supervisors may wish to consult with their students regarding texts being currently used in their pastoral theology courses. Often mentors/supervisors have benefited from reading a chapter, article or book during the period of the placement.

Mentors/supervisors will meet with the Director of Theological Field Education for orientation to the program and will have a Canvas 'course' site where forms and resources will be located.

3.2 Responsibilities and Opportunities

Once an appropriate match has been found between a mentor/supervisor and a student, and officially confirmed by the Director of Theological Field Education, a Learning Covenant is signed and submitted to VST. (See Appendix VI)

The relationship between student and mentor/supervisor is a collegial one in which they respect the fact that each is on a journey of following God's call. The mentor/supervisor offers the student support and feedback through a disciplined, educational process in which they reflect together on the challenges of ministry in the context in which they serve. They agree to adhere to the School’s pertinent policies, outlined in Section Six.

The key component in the educational process by which the mentor/supervisor endeavours to guide the student’s reflection is the regular weekly or biweekly reflection sessions they hold together. A sample process for a reflection session is included in Appendix IV. Mentors and supervisors assist VST by providing written evaluative reports due to the TFE Director by dates set out in the Field Education Calendar, pages 7-8.

3.3 What does the role of mentor/supervisor involve?

3.3.1 Mentoring of students in TFE 2 - The Studio involves:

- willingness to support the Educational Philosophy of TFE and the specific focus of this unit of TFE.
- self-understanding as a learned and experienced guide willing to venture into unknown territory (“the future that is seeking to emerge”) with a student for the purpose of mutual learning in the face of change
- willingness to prompt strategic thinking about the ministry leadership opportunity the student is exploring/pursuing
- willingness to prompt on-going, sometimes in the moment, discernment and reflection about adaptive leadership
- willingness to be consulted about assignments
- willingness to offer and discuss with the student recommended resources relevant to ministerial or community leadership
- willingness to provide mid-point and final-year reports to the Director of Theological Field Education
- willingness to develop, agree to, and remain faithful to terms of accountability in the Learning Covenant approved by the Director of Theological Field Education

3.3.2 Supervision of students in TFE 3 - The Practice involves:

- willingness to support the Educational Philosophy of TFE and the specific focus of this unit of TFE.
- self-understanding as a learned and experienced guide willing to venture into unknown territory (“the future that is seeking to emerge”) with a student for the purpose of mutual learning in the face of change
- willingness to prompt strategic thinking, including theological reflection, on the challenges of ministry leadership in the specific ministry context
- willingness to work with the student to focus on the requirements of their denomination

- willingness to prompt on-going, sometimes in the moment, discernment and reflection about adaptive leadership
- willingness to be consulted about assignments
- willingness to find ways to provide ‘hands-on’ experience as appropriate
- willingness to offer and discuss with the student recommended resources relevant to ministerial leadership, with specific focus on the denomination
- willingness to make mid-point and final-year reports to the Director of Theological Field Education
- willingness to develop, agree to, and remain faithful to terms of accountability in the Learning Covenant approved by the Director of Theological Field Education

3.4 Constructive Feedback

Good feedback is an essential part of a praxis (action-reflection) approach to education. Constructive feedback can result in new approaches, directions and behavioral changes. Feedback identifies both our strengths and weaknesses, i.e. those areas that we need to develop in order to achieve greater competency. Feedback works best when it is offered within relationships of trust and respect. The Learning Covenant provides a framework in which constructive feedback may be offered in specific areas. Helpful feedback might include some of these characteristics:

- descriptive
- specific
- appropriate
- useful
- timely
- clear
- accurate
- directly related to the learning goals.

Bearing in mind that it is essential to provide affirmation to the student, we also recognize that it is more difficult to give negative feedback. Please see Appendix III for further suggestions.

4. Students

4.1 Responsibilities and Expectations

In the first term of their first year, students will have various opportunities to meet with the Director of Theological Field Education, their Directors of Denominational Formation (if applicable) and the professors in the Practical Theology area of the school. Some of these encounters will be informal, some more formal in interviews or courses. Through this time, there is opportunity to discuss vocational goals for the student’s program of Theological Field Education.

In the second term, students begin TFE 1 – The Exploration, which runs alongside PT502 and follows-up on assignments begun in PT 500. Students explore possibilities for a ministry site and mentor which will fulfill their personal ministry vision. They will participate in TFE 1/PT502 seminars. Their “Exploration Log” will record their progress toward the goal of a prospective site, project and mentor.

At the close of that term, the student makes a live presentation of the Project Proposal and, if accepted, TFE 1 is complete. A formal Learning Covenant is signed by the student, supervisor/mentor and the Director of TFE.

In a subsequent year, students move into TFE 2 and participate in The Studio (PT651 and PT652). Here they will discuss, refine and prepare Learning Goals appropriate to themselves and to the ministry site chosen and approved in TFE 1. In TFE 2 placements, students are expected to engage in their learning site for 10-12 hours per week over 10-12 weeks of each term.

In a subsequent year, students in the MDiv move into TFE 3 - Practice placements. Students meet with the Director of Theological Field Education to discuss those placements, Learning Goals and possible site placements that might help them attain their vocational goals. In TFE 3 – The Practice placements, students are required to engage actively in ministry, whether congregational, institutional or community for 8-10 hours per week over 10-12 weeks of each term.

In all years, students in field site locations are expected to:

- meet for one hour weekly or two hours bi-weekly to reflect theologically on the student’s progress in attaining the goals, objectives and action plans listed in the Learning Covenant
- to prepare evaluation reports (mid-year, final year) as required by each program
- take one weekend off at study break and to have a Christmas break. Any other time away from the site must be negotiated with their mentor/supervisors. The time required to plan for other meetings, workshops and worship services should be included in time spent in the field placement work and must be negotiated with the mentor.
- to abide by all applicable policies of VST (See Section 6) and of the appropriate denominational authority.

4.2 Student’s Responsibilities in Relation to the Mentor

In TFE 2 and TFE 3, the field placement mentor/supervisor and student set a mutually agreeable time and place to meet for reflection sessions, either one hour weekly or two hours bi-weekly. In consultation with the mentor/supervisor, the student draws up a formal Learning Covenant with clearly stated Learning Goals that are suitable to the context and tasks in ministry available at the site, that meet the School's requirements, and the student's personal goals.

All students who are undertaking TFE 2 – The Studio or TFE 3 – The Practice are required to submit a Learning Covenant for review by the Director of Theological Field Education.

Discussion with the mentor/supervisor should include criteria regarding how the student's work will be evaluated, and the establishment of a procedure to follow in case conflict arises during placement at this site.

During reflection sessions, students will debrief, analyze, strategize and set out action plans for achieving the goals in their Learning Covenant. (See Appendix IV "Theological Reflection," which describes some approaches to theological reflection to use in these sessions.)

4.3 Student's Responsibility in Relation to Evaluation

In TFE 2 and TFE 3 students are required to submit a self-assessment report mid-way through the year and a final self-assessment report at the end of the appropriate academic term. (See Appendix VI for these forms.)

Mentors/supervisors are requested to submit a mid-year evaluation report on the student's work at the placement site, as well as an end-of-year evaluation report. All written reports are discussed with the other party before being submitted to the Director of Theological Field Education.

If the student does not agree with a report or any sections in it, the mentor must note that disagreement in the report and provide a brief comment regarding a plan for resolution.

4.4 Theological Reflection

Expressed very simply, we do theological reflection when we examine an event or other experience in the light of the question, "Where is God in this experience?" (See Appendix IV "Theological Reflection")

5. Assessment and Evaluation

5.1 General Information

Evaluation involves a formal process of reflecting on the learning experience in order to make meaning of it. The student and mentor/supervisor participate in a process that allows the student to reflect on how she or he has functioned in ministry in a given context. In turn, the experience contributes to the student's on-going self-awareness and construction of a vocational identity. Goals attained and unfinished tasks are named during the evaluation process. Areas of growth and on-going challenges are also identified. If possible, the evaluation process at the end of the final term may be concluded with an exercise of intentional closure and leave-taking (perhaps in the context of the Sunday worship service, or a staff meeting at an agency).

Constructive feedback can empower mentors/supervisors and students alike and can contribute to life-long learning, transformation and faithfulness. Feedback must be constructive, respectful, honest and open.

Students and mentors must deal with issues of concern as they arise, so they can be resolved as soon as possible. Feedback on any topic that is not included in the Learning Covenant must be negotiated with the student before it is offered. Refer to Appendix III for suggestions on "How to Provide Constructive Feedback."

5.2 Evaluation Process and Written Reports

Guidelines and process for student evaluation in the forms that are provided in Appendix VI. Written reports should contain information and only comments or concerns that have been discussed with the student during scheduled meetings. Reports should not include issues or concerns that have not been raised already with the student.

We recommend that each party prepare a draft of their report that they circulate to each other, and then, if necessary, amend. All reports are signed to indicate that they have been read, understood and discussed. "Signing-off" on a report indicates that both parties have reached consensus. It does not indicate that the signing parties agree 100% with the report, but that they can live with the report's conclusions.

Students and mentors must report any disagreements that arise during the evaluation process. You may need to schedule additional meetings to resolve any disagreements or conflicts. In the event of a disagreement, evaluation reports must include a signed addendum outlining the nature of the disagreement, the process followed to date and steps planned to resolve the disagreement.

In addition to scheduled meetings with mentors and supervisors, the Director of Theological Field Education is available to students and mentors/supervisors for consultation and conflict resolution. (604-822-9035 or at schambers@vst.edu)

The TFE Director will review all reports (and participation in integrative seminars where applicable). The Director will report completion or non-completion of TFE Units to the registrar's office. It is greatly appreciated by VST and students when mentors/supervisors write their reports in time for the students to meet all due dates (most crucial are dates for graduation). Students are responsible for the submission of reports in a timely manner. Please note due dates for mid and end-of-year reports listed in the Field Education Calendar, page 7-8.

5.3 Denominational Requirements

For students preparing for ministerial leadership in a denomination in which they are a candidate or postulant, there are specific outcomes and requirements that may be required. Many of these are satisfied within TFE 2 - The Studio, its related courses (PT651 and PT652), field work and TFE 3 - The Practice —particularly those related to character and identity of the leader; cultural and social context; and adaptive practice. In evaluations by mentors and in students' self evaluation consideration should be given to their denominational outcomes. (See Appendix V for the "Denominational Learning Outcomes.")

5.4 VST Recommendation of Readiness for Ministry

A Recommendation of Readiness for Ministry is a certification that is provided to officials at a student's denomination that in the opinion of the members of the Faculty of VST an M.Div. or MA-PPL graduate is suitable for the exercise of ministry.

The Faculty is guided in this process and determines whether to grant or to withhold the Recommendation on criteria in the following areas:

(A) Personal Characteristics

- 1) Faithfulness to Persons and Tasks: Respects and cares for others. Values ideas and needs of others. Practices adequate self-care. Communicates honestly. Demonstrates leadership abilities.
- 2) Personal Integrity: Demonstrates authenticity, sincerity and congruity in word and deed.
- 3) Personal Responsibility: Maintains commitments, schedules, promises, inner convictions. Manages personal finances in a responsible way. Accepts responsibility for mistakes. Shows consistency in responses to persons and circumstances.
- 4) Flexibility: Adaptive to new situations and contexts. Copes well with the unexpected. Able to relate to a wide variety of people, e.g., age, gender, cultures, economic status, etc.
- 5) Gifts of Caring: Sensitive to needs and feelings of other people. Encourages others to share their problems and to seek appropriate help/support. Helps others evaluate options and make their own decisions. Speaks the truth in love.

- 6) Self-Awareness: Aware of how others perceive her or him. Able to solicit honest feedback. Able to be self-critical.

(B) Understanding and Practice of Ministry

- 1) Vocational Clarity: Has a clear vocational identity and direction. Gives evidence of spiritual growth and development. Has a disciplined life of prayer. Able to articulate a well-grounded personal faith.
- 2) Mission of the Church: Demonstrates support for the mission of the church. Committed to public ministry. Concerned about justice issues. Cares for the marginalized, the alienated and the needy.
- 3) Denominational Collegiality: Feels at home in her or his denomination and is familiar with the denomination's ethos and history. Can work within denominational structures. Is respectful of other traditions within her or his denomination and of other denominational and faith traditions.
- 4) Coping with Stress/Conflict/Life Crises: Understands conflict as an inevitable part of community life. Seeks fairness, openness and good communication in a conflict situation. Deals with stress in a balanced, healthy way. Is constructively supportive when others ask for help.

(C) Disqualifying Patterns of Behaviour

- 1) Pursuit of Personal Advantage: Inappropriately manipulates institutional structures to meet personal needs. Tries to control situations to an inappropriate degree. Rejects others' needs or desires and aggressively pursues their own.
- 2) Inappropriate Self-Protective Behaviour: Under stress becomes guarded and secretive or, alternatively, aggressive and bullying. Excessively self-interested. Inflexible about schedules, appointments, etc. Tends to shift blame to others or to circumstances.
- 3) Aggressive/Abusive Behaviour: Attacks persons not issues. In intense situations consistently bursts with anger or withdraws in hostility.

These criteria are shared with mentors/supervisors to guide their assessment of students engaged in Theological Field Education. Students receive information on this during Orientation.

More information on the Recommendation for Readiness for Ministry and the Faculty Student Review Committee can be found in the Student Handbook at: <https://vst.edu/students/current/academics/handbook>.

6. VST Policies Relating to Theological Field Education

6.1 Applicable School Policies from the Student Handbook

For a complete listing of school policies, see the Student Handbook, published annually. <https://vst.edu/students/current/academics/handbook>.

6.2 VST's Theological, Educational, Curricular and Communal Commitments

(A) Our Theological Foundations:

- 1) God calls a people from and for the world to be a blessing for all creation.
- 2) The God revealed in the history of Israel and in Jesus Christ, calls us to think together with tradition for the sake of the present and the future.
- 3) We meet God's image in our neighbour and in all creation.

(B) Our Educational Objective:

We are called to educate and form thoughtful, engaged and generous Christian leaders together with friends of other faith and cultural traditions.

(C) Our Curricular Goals:

- 1) Faithful discernment of the demands of Christian service
- 2) Rigorous engagement with Christian tradition and contemporary learning
- 3) Hospitable and respectful collaboration with Indigenous spiritualities and other cultural and faith traditions for the good of all creation.

(D) Our Educational Community Commits to:

- 1) Theological education and formation (theological, biblical, pastoral, ethical, liturgical, historical, indigenous and inter-religious) for the flourishing of God's people
- 2) Inspiring discerning Christian discipleship within and outside this community
- 3) Respect for the dignity of every person
- 4) Learning and scholarship undertaken with diligence and openness
- 5) Encouraging prophetic speech and just action for the love and welfare of creation

6.3 Student Responsibilities

Responsibility for course selection to fulfill program and degree requirements rests with the student. The Registrar, Program Chairs and all faculty members are available to give advice and guidance.

It is the student's responsibility, however, to read and understand the academic policies and procedures as set out in this Student Handbook and in the course descriptions and syllabi. Additional information about regulations and deadlines will be communicated by the Registrar during the term.

6.4 Inclusivity

VST is a multi-denominational school that encourages respect for the capabilities and contributions of all people. Students are expected to treat each other with respect in order that all may learn from each other in a nurturing environment.

VST admits qualified students to its programs of study regardless of age, colour, gender, sexual orientation or preference, national or ethnic origin, or disability. VST does not discriminate on the basis of any of these in the administration of its educational policies, admissions policies, bursaries, or other programs administered by the School.

6.5 Language of Worship/Words We Choose

The language used in worship at VST ecumenical services should be consistent with the mission and values of the school and reflect our theological diversity and ethos of the community. Worship leaders are encouraged to be thoughtful in their choice of language with attention to experiences of the gathered community. General principles to guide this include: Seeking balance between the historical and the new; finding words that include all the people of God and don't exclude on the basis of gender, race, age, ability or social economic status; using a variety of metaphors to draw close to God: Mother, Father, King, Water, Wind, Spirit, Divine, Creator. This includes attention to gender-inclusivity, postcolonial interpretation, avoiding super-secessionism, respect for all religions and multicultural sensitivity.

6.6 VST Anti-Harassment Policy

Vancouver School of Theology (VST) is a community that operates on Christian values including caring and integrity in relationships. We endeavor at all times to provide a working and learning environment that is free from discrimination, supportive of spiritual and academic life, and that promotes the dignity, self-esteem and fair treatment of all members of the community.

The basis of interaction at the School is one of mutual respect, cooperation and understanding, and we will not tolerate any behavior that is likely to undermine this.

Harassment is against the law: The Canadian Human Rights Act and the Canada Labour Code protect us from harassment. The Criminal Code protects us from physical and sexual assault. You have a right to live and work without being harassed, and if you are harassed, you can do something about it. This policy tells you what to do if you experience harassment at work, or if you, as a manager or an employee, become aware of a harassing situation.

VST promises to treat all complaints of harassment seriously, whether they are made informally or formally. We undertake to act on all complaints to ensure that they are resolved quickly, confidentially, and fairly. We will discipline anyone who has harassed a person or group of people. We will discipline managers who do not act properly to end harassment.

For more information, see the VST Anti-Harassment Policy on the VST website (<https://vst.edu/files/Antiharassment-Policy.pdf>), or contact the Anti-Harassment Officer, Shari Coltart.

6.7 Policies pertaining specifically to Theological Field Education

(As approved by Faculty Council, August 2019)

6.7.1 Faculty Supervision

VST Faculty are not normally eligible to supervise students in Theological Field Education. Consideration will be given to Sessional Instructors to serve in this capacity, as long as students are not currently in a course being taught by the instructor.

6.7.2 VST Organizational Bodies

VST, or any of its boards, committees or student or alumni associations are ineligible to be used as learning sites for TFE.

6.7.3 Students of VST

Students in a Theological Field Education site may not be in a counseling or supervisory relationship with another VST student at that site. This is not to exclude the peer learning model employed in The Studio, where students are expected to offer feedback to one another and to partner in learning.

6.7.4 Payment for Theological Field Education

Students and mentors/supervisors in TFE do not receive payment. No field work is initiated for the purpose of obtaining paid employment. If a student already holds a paid position, the student may request of the TFE Director to have hours of/within that paid employment used toward TFE 3. All requirements of TFE 3 would be in place, including the stipulated hours, following the establishment of the employment. The TFE supervisory relationship and some activities defined under the TFE Learning Covenant may be in addition to paid hours.

6.7.5 TFE in a 'Home Community'

Many students who enter TFE will have had some experience in a local community of faith. This may have been for a long period of time or for a short time. Since TFE is concerned with initiating opportunities for new mutual learning experiences, learning sites would not automatically be approved where a student has had some previous involvement or history.

6.7.6 Required for Completion

Students are normally required to take all TFE units (or equivalent) and as many as necessary to successfully meet requirements of the specific degree and specific denominational learning outcomes. Students entering the Master of Divinity with professional ministry experience may be considered for advanced placement by the Director of Theological Field Education.

6.7.7 Police Information Check

A Police Information Check (PIC), formerly called a Criminal Record Check, is required for all students in TFE. Students are responsible for attaining the PIC from their local police department and for the cost (See: Section 1.2.1) If the student has a current PIC (within the last six months), a copy of that document will be accepted. A copy of the PIC is to be uploaded to Populi before the beginning of any course with a field component, or any unit of TFE begins.

Appendix I: Theological Field Education FAQ

General Questions:

1. Do I have to do TFE?

TFE 1, 2, 3 are required for the MDiv degree; TFE 1, 2, are required for the MA-PPL degree.

2. Do I register for TFE?

Yes, just as you would for another course in any other term.

3. I'm taking PT551 "Pastoral Identity and Practice" which includes supervision. Does this count for TFE units?

No. This is supervision arranged by the instructor of that course and is separate from the TFE credits.

4. If a conflict emerges in my field education, what do I do?

If any part of the teaching, learning or evaluation process breaks down, the Director of Theological Field Education must be notified immediately. Upon notification, a consultative process will be initiated to resolve the differences or to terminate the field placement agreement.

Questions about The Studio:

1. Who can apply to be in The Studio?

Students preparing for public and pastoral leadership who have completed the prerequisites.

2. Does everyone who applies get in?

No. All eligible students who need The Studio to graduate at the end of the current academic year will be admitted upon approval of their completed TFE 1 Proposals. Other registrants will be admitted according to the strength of their proposal and space available.

3. What are the academic prerequisites?

PT500 or equivalent from another institution (the Registrar is responsible for assessment of equivalencies) PT501, PT502.

4. Are there other requirements for admission to The Studio?

Yes, you must have your completed proposal, Learning Goals and Learning Covenant (including the signed site covenant) approved by the Director of Theological Field Education prior to the add/drop date of Term One.

5. Should I be in The Studio in the middle of my program or at the end?

The Studio is designed to accompany the second full year of Theological Field Education, following TFE1 – The Exploration (PT 502). Those with very little or no previous leadership experience, those who did not successfully complete TFE1 - Exploration, those who did not have their proposal for The Studio approved and those who might benefit from doing TFE 3 prior to The Studio, will be encouraged to register for The Studio in another year of their program instead.

6. What happens to my TFE if I delay registering for The Studio until my final year?

If you keep space to register for The Studio in order to complete the degree requirements, there isn't a problem. Your ability to exercise leadership depends on your level of comfort in the environment, including your relationships with those with whom you will work. If you carry sufficient confidence within yourself and with your mentor to begin offering leadership in a community with whom you have had only a short-term relationship, you are strongly encouraged to take The Studio as early in the program as you are able. If, however you do not feel comfortable enough, or sufficiently well established in the community, to build your team and offer leadership to the project you have identified, it is better to delay registering for The Studio until you do. There may be other reasons to delay as well. You may be advised to enroll in TFE3 – The Practice prior to TFE 2.

7. Can I do only one term of The Studio instead of both?

No. The Studio is an eight-month, two term, program.

8. If my leadership project is over or not yet started, can I do The Studio anyway?

No. The Studio requires concurrent practice of leadership in the form of TFE2 - The Studio (10-12 hours a week).

9. Can I do The Studio concurrently with Clinical Pastoral Education (CPE)?

It is possible, but both The Studio and CPE require significant time commitments and students should be cautious about taking them concurrently. CPE, taken from September to April is part-time – about 15 hours/week. The Studio / TFE II expectation is 8-12 hours per week in the placement plus the hours in the classroom. It isn't impossible to do both, but it's a heavy load.

10. What if I have leadership experience and already consider myself a competent leader?

If you are an experienced leader you will be the first to acknowledge that there is no such thing as having achieved perfection in leadership or even in being beyond the need for raising the bar on your own capacity for leading adaptive change. The Studio is designed to meet you where you are and take you to the next step. As someone leading from within with the capacity for skillful, reflective and effective leadership in a context of significant organizational and cultural change, you will identify your own need for growth and use The Studio to develop your leadership.

11. Will I learn anything?

Unlike a course where a Professor brings material to you, in The Studio YOU bring material to the instructor and your peers, who in turn give it back to you for your own learning. The depth and extent of your learning is in direct proportion to what you bring into The Studio. Only the artist who brings appropriate materials and fresh desires to The Studio creates a work of art, or at least a work in progress!

12. What if I don't see myself as a leader or don't believe ministers should be leaders?

Leadership is not a job description or a personality trait; it is an activity. It is a term we use to describe a way of offering yourself to people facing into what matters most to them with a desire to close the gap between their aspirations and their reality. Pastoral and public ministry, by definition, involves offering leadership to individuals and communities living in the gap between their current situation and the promise of fullness of life, the future that is emerging.

13. What do I need to do to apply?

You need to complete 1) PT502 – Practical Foundations for Public and Pastoral Ministry: Leading in Context and 2) have your Project Proposal (which signifies completion of TFE 1) approved by the Director of Field Education prior to the first day of class in Fall Term and pay the course fee.

14. How much does it cost?

The Studio comprises two 3.0 credit courses at VST. Cost of 3.0 credits is posted on the VST website.

15. Where do I exercise leadership during my Studio year?

TFE 1 - Exploration gives you opportunity to locate a site, project and mentor for your work in The Studio.

16. What is expected of the mentor?

The single most important expectation of the mentor is an understanding and a commitment to the goals of The Studio. If you and the Theological Field Education Director are confident of this, ask the mentor to fill out the appropriate documentation, which outlines further related expectations and include this in your application.

17. What do we do each session?

Each session varies and is critically dependent upon what each participant brings to the session. We engage that raw material in our learning.

18. What is the workload?

In addition to spending 10 – 12 hours in your learning site working on your leadership project each week, you will be expected to:

- Be physically, emotionally, spiritually and intellectually present for The Studio session and for other participants.
- Meet the assignments as outlined on the syllabus for PT651 and PT652.
- Attend at least 80% of The Studio sessions and give notice of, and reason for, absence

The workload, however, rests almost entirely with you. You work as hard as you choose and your increased competencies for leadership will be reflective of your efforts.

Appendix II: Sample Learning Goals and Learning Covenant

This is a sample only. The Learning Goals and Learning Covenant form two parts of one document. See the illustration ‘Learning Goals and Objectives’ on page 31.

PART ONE – Student Information

Information about the student, the mentor/supervisor and the site.

PART TWO - Learning Goals

General Goals

- To complete the requirements of (TFE 2 – The Studio or TFE 3 - Practice) with special attention to (for example, my growth as a facilitator, religious education, pastoral care, team leading, leading worship) at (name of site), in consultation and collaboration with my mentor (name).
- To complete the requirements of (TFE 2 – The Studio or TFE 3 - Practice) during the Fall Term DATE and the Spring Term DATE

Goal 1: To Gain Experience in Leading Bible Studies

Objective: To design, plan and take primary leadership in an educational ministry event.

Action Plan:

1. Meet with the Christian Education Committee in October to discuss the possibility of a Lenten Bible study. We will discuss conducting a "needs assessment" asking such questions as "Does the congregation want a Lenten Bible study?" "What is the level of commitment to attend a Lenten Bible study?" "What are the burning issues that people are concerned about that might be addressed as topics in a Lenten Bible study?"
2. Meet in November with VST faculty members responsible for religious education for their input and advice. Draw up a proposal and present it to my mentor and the Christian Education Committee.
3. Determine an evaluation process by January. Design an evaluation form that addresses (a) Bible study design and content, (b) teaching skills, (c) general comments about my effectiveness as a religious teacher (theology, teaching style and delivery) and (d) suggestions for my further development as a religious educator.
4. During January and February, prepare a teaching plan and an outline for each session.
5. During Lent, teach the Bible study.
6. Meet with my mentor after Lent to debrief the experience, review suggestions and offer ideas for “next steps” in my development as a religious educator.

Resources:

- Faculty responsible for educational ministry at the School
- The Christian Education Committee

Goal 2: To Develop Skills in Leading Public Worship with Children

Objective: To gain experience by leading “The Children's Time” during worship.

Action Plan:

1. Meet with the worship planning team and worship committee to discuss the possibility of leading “The Children's Time” every other week during October and November.
2. Meet with the Sunday school teachers in September. Ask if they might design two sessions in which they would teach me how to teach children and lead them in worship. These sessions would include resources they use, for example, how to teach Sunday school children, teaching tools, storytelling techniques, etc. Attend the two teaching sessions in October.
3. Lead "The Children's Time" every other week in October and November (at least four occasions).
4. Meet with the Sunday school teachers after each occasion to debrief and receive feedback.
5. Share what I have learned about working with children in worship with my mentor.

Resources:

- The faculty who teach religious education and liturgical studies at the School
- Sunday school teachers
- Resources on storytelling, teaching children and children in worship found in the School's library
- The Sunday School Teachers, Christian Education Committee, and Worship Committee
- My mentor

Goal 3: To Learn How to Make Pastoral Visits

Objective: To attend pastoral visits as an observer and to make at least one pastoral visit on my own.

Action plan:

1. Accompany my mentor on at least two pastoral visits in September and early October, one to a hospital, the other to a home, and write a verbatim on each of these visits.
2. Discuss the verbatim during a reflection session with my mentor following these visits.

- Conduct one pastoral visit on my own and provide a verbatim regarding that visit to my mentor.

Resources:

- My mentor
- Faculty with experience in pastoral care
- Print resources regarding pastoral care
- The pastoral care team of the congregation

PART THREE – Learning Covenant

This section identifies the General Terms of the agreement between the student, mentor/supervisor, the site and the school. This also contains the approval of the TFE Director.

Appendix III: How to Provide Constructive Feedback

The following suggestions are provided to assist both supervisors and Ministry Reflection Group members to develop skills in this part of their role.

Descriptive

Be descriptive rather than judgmental. By describing your own reaction, you leave the other person free to use the feedback as they see fit. When you use judgmental language, the person receiving feedback is likely to become defensive and "shut down" (i.e. no further learning will take place during this exchange). Use "I" language when you offer feedback. By doing so, you acknowledge that you are speaking from your own perspective, observations, perceptions and feelings. Example: "When you use the word 'girl' or 'dear', I feel put down and not recognized as an adult woman."

Specific

Be specific rather than general. Example: instead of saying, "You are very dominating", offer this statement "Just now, when we were deciding the issue, I felt you were not hearing what others were saying. I felt forced to accept your arguments."

Appropriate

Feedback can be destructive when it serves only our own needs and fails to consider the needs of the person on the receiving end. What we offer must be supportive and responsible. Example: "Speaking in large groups is difficult for you, isn't it? I appreciated the effort it took for you to make your contribution to the Board meeting. Your comments were helpful. How can we help you to continue to build your confidence?"

Requested

A Learning Covenant requests feedback on specific and clearly stated learning goals. If a student wants additional feedback, he/she/they should ask for it. If a student wants to offer feedback, she/h/they should wait to be invited to contribute it or seek permission to offer feedback at the receiver's convenience. Feedback is most helpful when the receiver develops a framework in which constructive criticism might be offered. For example, a student may want to develop a worship feedback sheet listing the areas in which they/she/he wants feedback.

Useful

Direct your feedback toward behaviour that the person can change. Most of us find it frustrating to be reminded of shortcomings over which we have no control. Example: "I enjoyed your Children's Time last Sunday, but I would have found it more helpful if you had used the microphone so that I could have heard the story, too." Note the use of "I" statements in this example.

Timely

Consider the timing of your feedback carefully. In general, the feedback is most helpful when offered sooner rather than later. It is not helpful to make a quick critical comment immediately following an observed behaviour unless you are prepared to spend time with the person receiving your feedback. Example: "I'd like to offer some feedback on the process you used in Bible study tonight. Do you have time to sit down and talk about it or can we set up a time soon?" Under normal circumstances, it is better to offer constructive feedback during a regularly scheduled meeting with the Mentor or Ministry Reflection Group.

Clear

Check to ensure that you are communicating clearly. One way of doing this is to have the receiver rephrase the feedback to see if it corresponds to what you intend to convey. Example: "Let me see if I understand what you are saying to me. Was it the specific word I used in a sermon that concerns you or the general message I was trying to convey?"

Accurate

Check for accuracy. When feedback is offered in a group, both the giver and the receiver have an opportunity to check with others about the accuracy of the feedback. Is this person's impression shared by others? Example: "In this evaluation session, someone suggested that more printed resources would have been helpful. What do others think about this idea?"

Connected to the Learning Covenant

As much as possible, limit feedback to the goals stated in the Learning Covenant. Example: "I've been thinking about your goal to develop your pastoral skills. When John told us about his daughter's illness, it really seemed to throw you. Could we set aside some time at our next meeting of the Ministry Reflection Group and role-play the various pastoral responses to crises?"

A Model for Non-violent Communication

Marshall Rosenberg offers an excellent model of communication for constructive feedback. It provides the kind of feedback discussed in previous pages of this Guide. Rosenberg's model empowers people to exchange resources and resolve differences in non-aggressive ways. He advises us to speak honestly and responsibly about our own perceptions, feelings, values and desires, as well as listen to the perceptions, feelings, values and desires of others. Rosenberg's model focuses on four essential pieces of information:

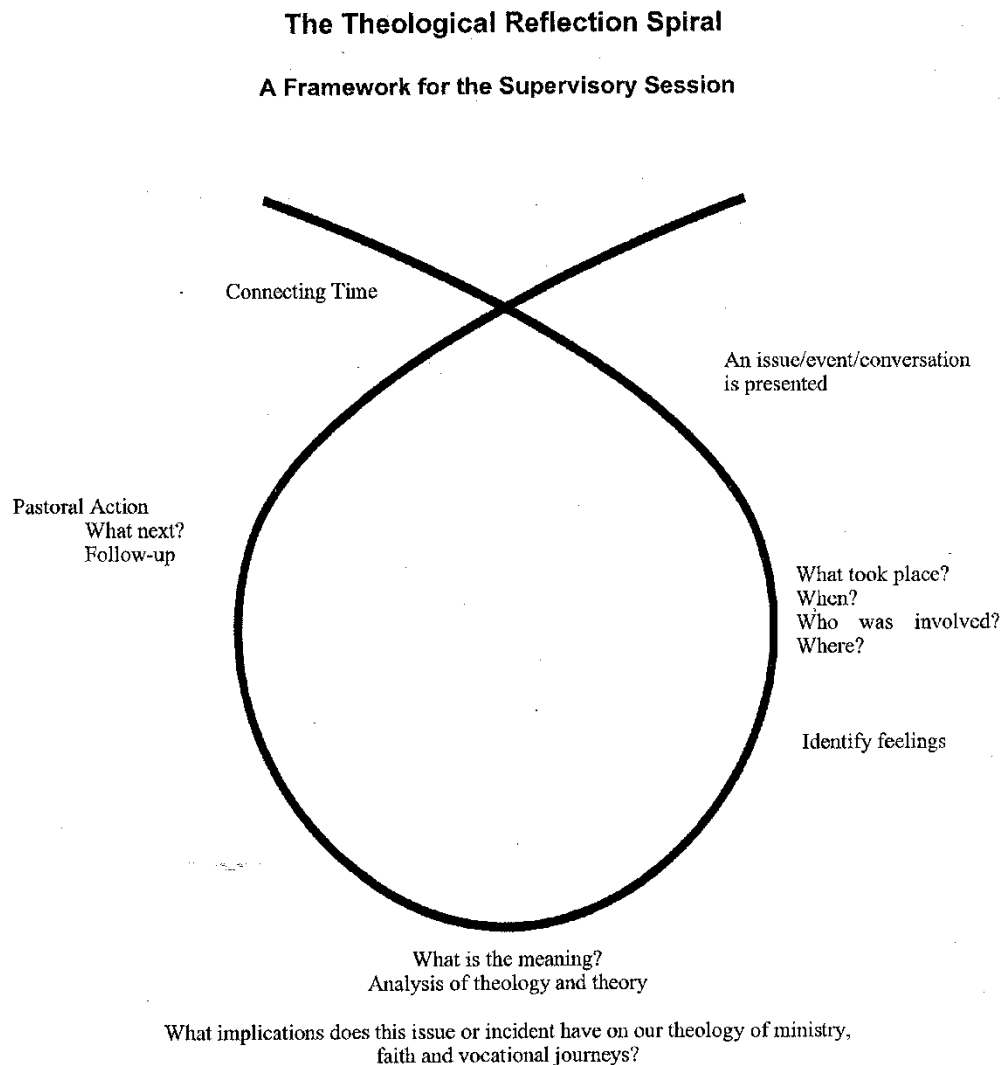

"When you said (or did) _____, I felt _____."

"And because I value _____, I would like _____."

This material is from Marshall Rosenberg, who is the Director of the Center for Nonviolent Communication, P.O. Box 2662, Sherman, Texas.

Appendix IV: Theological Reflection

A. The Theological Reflection Spiral

1. Prepare: Identify and name your assumptions. This might include considering:

- Who are you in relation to your faith community?
- How do they perceive you?
- How do you locate yourself socially, economically, culturally?
- What questions do you carry into this experience?
- Why are they important to you?

2. Experience

- Assume the role of a participant or observer.
- What do you observe?
- What feelings, questions and concerns do you have?

3. Describe

- Record briefly what you saw, what you think was happening and why.
- Note what you already knew prior to the experience, i.e. your assumptions.
- What cultural, social, economic norms are operative in this experience?

4. Analyze

- Describe what you really think was going on and why.
- Put the biblical images, themes, stories that have come to you into the conversation.
- What new insights emerge?
- What affirmation or challenge emerges from the biblical themes, stories or images?

5. Reconsider

- Repenser or ‘think again’ – revisit your knowledge, assumptions, expressions of Christian faith and practice in the light of the previous steps.
- Identify the areas in which you are feeling challenged, confirmed, strengthened, disturbed by the process so far.
- Name any change that you think may be required of you and/or of others.
- How could such a change occur?

6. Practice

Review the previous steps. Can you name any shift in your perception, faith perspective, ministry, mission or vision of the church? In turn, these identified shifts may provide new starting points for theological reflection on another experience. The spiral invokes an image of continuous theological reflection, change and learning.

B. Theological Reflection Based on Life Experience1. Choose an experience.

One from your life that has meaning and significance for you.

2. Describe the significance of the experience.

Use the following questions as a guide. You do not need to answer all the questions. They will guide you through the process of your reflection.

- What makes this experience significant?
- What questions came to mind as you engaged in this experience?
- What feelings did you experience?
- What did you fear?
- What was the resultant effect of this experience on you?
- Is there an image or word that describes this time for you?

3. Broaden your consideration of the experience.

- Have any authors, preachers, friends or colleagues referred to a similar experience?

- How have they responded?
 - What does my culture say about this kind of experience?
4. Begin to theologize.
- Are there biblical motifs in this experience?
 - Where is God in this experience?
 - What biblical text, story or image comes to mind?
 - What does my religious tradition (theologians, authors, denomination, etc.) say about this experience?
 - What are the implications for ministry?
 - How does this experience affect my view of God or of what it means to be a believer?

Examples of theological concepts that you might be able to identify in your experience may include:

Kingdom	Incarnation	Creation	Solidarity
Conscience	Honesty	Sacrifice	Hospitality
Church	Sin	Hope	Vindication
Grace	Reconciliation	Repentance	Balance
Redemption	Peace	Service	Judgment
Faith	Love	Revelation	Joy
Justice	Covenant	Vocation
Ministry	Compassion	Freedom
Renewal	Discernment	Celebration
Prophecy	Obedience	Images of God

C. Theological Reflection Based on Field Placement Site Experience

1. Name the experience.

Consider recent conversations, events or incidents in which you have played a significant role.

Choose only one which challenged you or left you with lingering questions or concerns. This may have been either a positive or negative experience.

2. Reflect on the experience.

Prepare a straightforward narrative using the following questions to guide you.

- What happened?
- Who was involved?
- What role did you play?
- How did you react?
- How did others respond?
- Where did this experience leave you?

3. Analyze the experience.

- What factors were at work in the situation? Name the emotions, assumptions, attitudes, social and cultural issues, power dynamics, etc.
- What was at stake for you? How did your interaction reflect your personal history, experience, convictions, values, faith, etc.?
- How did this experience challenge your assumptions, perceptions, values or beliefs?
- What did you learn about yourself?
- What insights have you gained from this experience?
- What questions or concerns remain with you?

4. Make some theological connections.

Probe more deeply into the experience for insight using these questions:

- What biblical stories, images or symbols come to mind?
- What theological ideas, concepts or authors come to mind?
- What insights gained from your theological studies are particularly relevant?
- How does this experience or situation relate to other faiths, cultures or traditions as you understand them?

5. Reflect on your learning.

Identify some of the insights that emerge as you reflect on this experience using these questions:

- How has your faith been enriched or challenged by this experience?
- What did you learn about God?
- What did you learn about the practice of ministry?
- What did you learn about your pastoral identity?
- Will you do anything differently as a result of this experience?
- How does your reflection on this experience relate to your learning goals?

6. Conclude your theological reflection.

Suggest themes or questions that invite a broader discussion of the theology and the practice of ministry.

D. Written Report Formats for Reflection Sessions

Methods for the student's reporting for reflection sessions are included in this section. Some written reporting during the semester is valuable. The student should come to a session having thought about what she/he wants to discuss and have some plan for presenting data.

The following are suggested written formats for reporting:

1. Social Analysis

When you begin working in an agency or congregation research and observation about values, history, issues, resources and structures are helpful.

Congregations

Prepare a report for your reflection session on your observations of congregational life. The following are questions to consider:¹

- What are the major theological beliefs of this congregation?
- What is the larger context in which this community exists?
- Is the congregation “like or unlike” the surrounding community?
- How would you describe the culture and identity of the congregation?
- What are the formal and informal programs that are the most important to the congregants?
- Who makes up the congregation?
- How would they describe their community to outsiders?
- How does the community make decisions - formal and informal processes and leadership?
- What is the budget? How does it get created?

Agencies/Organizations

Prepare a report for your reflection sessions on your observations of the agency or organization. The following are questions to consider:

- What are the agency’s basic beliefs and primary values?
- How do the people who work here understand the purpose of their work?
- Describe the situations/issues that inform the work.
- Describe the agency’s culture and identity.
- What is the agency’s history and structure?
- How are decisions made: formal and informal?
- What is the budget? How is money generated for the agency?

2. Critical Incident in Ministry Format

Describe the most critical incident in your ministry during the past two to four weeks. The assignment assumes no a priori criteria for what is considered critical; rather it encourages students to allow themselves the fullest latitude in recalling the event which, in whatever way it is important, seems to typify their experiences. A critical incident can be a personal involvement that may have caused anxiety, or it may be an event that was exceptionally gratifying. In any case, it should be some experience that can be marked as the “high point” or the “low point” of the two to four-week period. Attempt to cover as many of the following areas as possible.

- Describe the event, including critical verbal and non-verbal communication involved and your response.

¹See Nancy T. Ammerman, Jackson W. Carroll, Carl S. Dudley, & William McKinney, eds., Studying Congregations (Abingdon, 1998), for detailed congregational analysis. The authors provide information on how to assess the theological perspectives of the congregation; the larger context in which the congregation exists; its culture and identity; the processes by which the congregation takes action; and the resources it has. The book provides a much more extensive resource if you would like to do further research.

- Describe any emotions you perceived in others.
- Describe your personal feelings about the situation.
- If it is a “low point,” state the problem as you see it; if it is a “high point,” state why it is so.
- If it is a “low point,” list some other ways you might have responded or handled the situation; if a high point state, any new insights or growth you perceive in the situation.
- Address the question, “How do I understand or make sense of this incident theologically?”

3. Verbatim Report Format

As a tool for the discovery of one’s leadership style and one’s strengths and weaknesses, the verbatim focuses on one specific concrete example of experience. It indicates to the student and to the mentor what the student did, not what she/he would like to have done. It allows for clarification of the experience, identification of significant moments in the relationship, presentation of alternatives and integration of theological, social, spiritual, etc. perspectives. (Use 2/3 width of page for the verbatim, saving the right-hand 1/3 for mentor’s responses.)

A. Introduction

- Time
- Place
- Brief description of the person (confidentiality should be considered)
- Relationship to the person
- Context of the conversation (what you thought of and felt about the person and her/his situation before this conversation)
- Other details or circumstances which are relevant

B. Verbatim Record of Conversation

An exact record of the conversation: (make notes as soon as possible after meeting), including pauses, non-verbal communications, facial expressions, etc., insofar as they help to catch the “tone” of the experience. If the conversation is longer than can be conveniently reported, give highlights, being sure to indicate where breaks occur, and summarizing missing parts. The effort in this part is to be purely descriptive - omitting explanation of why you did what you did. This effort calls for candor that will be, at times, difficult to achieve.

Example: Key: S = student, D = Mrs. Doe; Number the responses to make analysis and evaluation with mentor easier.

- S1: How are you today, Mrs. Doe?
 D1: Fine. How are you?
 S2: We missed you in church Sunday.
 D2: I missed being there (blushing) ...

Don’t try to “doctor” your report to make it look better. Rather, indicate changes you would make in the next step of your analysis.

C. Analysis and Evaluation

- What took place? Where do you and the person now stand in your relationship?
- Intention at beginning (discrepancy between intention and performance; shift in expectations, etc.)
- An evaluation of your responses, trying to identify your dominant feelings during the conversation. This is not an invitation to probe the depths of your unconscious, but a simple effort to catch the feelings on or near the surface (i.e., is this a person who makes you feel angry, happy, frustrated, etc.?). What did you see as the person's needs, and did your responses get at these needs? Are there any points that strike you as particularly significant now?
- Would certainly want to omit or do differently (indicate by number - D2 - etc.)?
- What does this interaction reveal about the person and about you? What kind of person are you in this interaction?
- 6. What effect did this interaction have on the person? How do you think she/he felt when it was over, and why?
- Other details or circumstances which are relevant.

D. Goals, Learning, and Future Involvement

- What goals and plans will you have for your next meeting with this person?
- What did you learn by studying this relationship and reporting on it (another person, yourself, own attitude to the other person)?

E. Theological Analysis and Evaluation

- What are the theological dynamics of the actual situation as you perceive them?
- Does your normative understanding of your faith shed any light on the situation and future possibilities?
- How has this report helped you to integrate your experience and theological understanding?

E. A Sample Process for Reflection Sessions

1. Presentation of agenda for the session that has been prepared by the student. Issues that the mentor might want to discuss may be added.
2. Student describes the first issue, situation, concern that prompted the need for reflection.

Data

Student presents the data. The focus is on getting an accurate picture of the event or situation.

Mentor asks for clarification about what took place or what prompted concern; what role the student played; who said and did what; what were the circumstances surrounding the event or situation.

Analysis of Dynamics

Personal: what were the feelings involved? What do you think are the relational dynamics, conflicts, confusions? What are the expectations? What did you hope for yourself in this situation? How did your hopes affect your sense of what was expected of you? How do you think the others involved were affected?

Social: What is the larger community context in which this situation arises? What are the power dynamics? What values and world views are being expressed? Who will be affected by what happens? Are they part of the decision making? What are the historical & structural relationships?

Theological Issues

What faith issues come out of the situation or event? Were there conflicts about belief and the meanings attributed to the situation? What theological questions were raised for you? What resources from the Bible/sacred text and your faith tradition may give insight into this situation?

Interpretation

What is your interpretation of the situation now? What would you change? What would that require? What do you see as alternatives? Do you have greater clarity about your role, needed skills, others? How does your theological insight inform and guide you in this situation? Do you have new insights about God, self, human nature, church, the world, sin, etc.?

Next Steps

What is your next step? What resources do you need? What faith questions and responses are called forth? What will you do about them?

Reminder: Learning objectives stated in the learning/serving covenant should be addressed regularly during the reflection sessions. If they are not, reassessment of the learning objectives needs to be undertaken.

Appendix V: Denominational Learning Outcomes

The denomination to which the student is connected will have specific Learning Outcomes or Competencies that relate to field education. Over the course of the TFE at VST, it is expected that students will fulfill their respective denominationally specified competencies to a satisfactory level. Following consultation with the appropriate Formation Director at the school and judicatory representatives, if applicable, students should integrate these denominational learning outcomes into their Learning Covenants. Students are encouraged to keep an on-going assessment of their learning, relative to their denominational expectations, throughout their program.

Students are normally required to take all TFE units (or equivalent) and as many as necessary to successfully meet the learning outcomes. Students entering the Master of Divinity with professional ministry experience may have advance placement in the learning outcomes.
