About the Film | www.endofhumanity.film

"The stories we tell about ourselves as humans and the power of technology impact how we design and invest in our future and how we engage AI. Increasingly, the story is that humans are inefficient and replaceable compared to AI. A gloomy view of humankind has become mainstream, catering to a future without trust – a future with weak democracies.

"The documentary The End of Humanity by Andreas Dürr and Jan-Marc Furer explores this narrative and probes alternative views. It encourages creative and critical thinking about a future worth wanting and the tools that allow us to build it. We need a global and concerted effort to invent a humane future for all."

Panel Moderator:

Rev. Dr. Joni Sancken (PhD, Toronto School of Theology, Emmanuel College) was previously Professor of Homiletics at United Theological Seminary in Dayton, OH and Assistant Professor of Preaching and Practical Theology at Eastern Mennonite Seminary in Harrisonburg, VA. She is currently the Butler Chair of Homiletics and Biblical Interpretation at Vancouver School of Theology. Much of her recent work has concerned the intersections of preaching and trauma studies.

Panelists:

Dr. Shawn Michael Bullock is a Professor of the History of Science, Technology and Education at the University of Cambridge, U.K. He uses the lenses offered by the history and philosophy of science and technology to examine issues in education, particularly, the history of higher education in physics in the 19th century, the history of technology, the history of engineering education, and the history of multilingual education.

Dr. Fiona Li is the inaugural holder of the Archbishop J. Michael Miller Chair in Catholic Studies at St. Mark's College. She currently works as the Associate Director of the Fraser Centre for Practical Theology at Regis College and served on the Editorial Team for the Canadian Journal of Theology, Mental Health and Disability.
